The present University year will be remembered for several important events. First of all, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of Vanderbilt University, October 21-23, 1900, was the most notable educational celebration ever held in the South. The careful manner in which every detail of this celebration had been planned, and the thorough work of every committee intrusted with its execution, caused the occasion to pass off with brilliant success. The general interest manifested by the press brought the University into conspicuous notice. The large attendance of delegates from other institutions showed clearly the high position Vanderbilt University holds in educational circles. The very especial interest taken in the occasion by the city of Nashville proves how strong a hold the University has at last taken on the community in which it is located. The year 1900--1901 will also be remembered for the completion of Kissam Hall. This magnificent building was presented to the University at the celebration in October, though it was not finally completed at that time. Its completion has come too late in the session for the students of the present year to derive much benefit from it. The kitchen and dining hall have been completed for some months, but only just now has it been possible for the students to occupy the rooms. The present session will also be remembered as a point of departure in the history of the Law and Dental Departments. With...
