Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Consolidation of Country Schools Agreeable to the request contained in the resolutions adopted by the Illinois Farmers Institute at the Bloomington meeting in February, 1903, the College of Agriculture proceeded at once to gather reliable information. Letters were sent to all the states of the Union asking what had been done, if anything, and how it had succeeded. Opinions were collected both from professional educators and from farmers who had experienced the workings of the system, all from sources the most diverse. Aside from this, a trusted agent of the institution visited the region in Ohio where the system had been longest in use, with instructions to note all the conditions found both favorable and unfavorable. The investigation was begun and conducted without bias or previously formed impressions as to the merits or demerits, advantages or disadvantages of this method of administering the school system. As the investigation proceeded, however, the conviction that is inevitable to anyone who really studies this question gradually forced itself upon the consciousness and, in spite of efforts to the...
