I am a farmer in the good town of Andover, in the County of Essex. I will not say a plain farmer, because I have observed that it is the style usually assumed by those who have some design of deception on hand; but I am placed far above any apprehension of ordinary want, by the ownership of an excellent and productive farm, bequeathed to me by my worthy father, whose ancestors had held it for many generations, and which I have worked on, man and boy, now nearly sixty years. The occasion to which I refer, was one of our annual husking-meetings, which I have always been in the habit of keeping up, as much for the purpose of social and friendly conversation, as with any other object; especially as I cannot think it right that a man who is receiving the good things of Providence should sit down grudgingly, (and a sad effort it is,) to enjoy them by himself. My wife and daughters are always happy to take the care of those comforts so necessary to make these occasions pass off agreeably; and really, it is very pleasant to meet a neighbor or two in this way, to chat about passing...
